Victor has asked that we sell his personal belongings that have been stored at our church since he left to go back to Nigeria nearly three years ago and give him the proceeds. The situation in Nigeria is making life hard for his family.

Thus, on Saturday, January 21, we are going to invite our church and the public to an Indoor Yard Sale of Victor's personal belongings, as well as other odds and ends that have been stored on the third floor of our church for several years. We will send the money received directly to Victor.

Please come and support this endeavor and pass the word!

DO GOOD; SEEK JUSTICE.

How does Paul manage to not write off his opponents as enemies and turn toward totally destroying them? How does Paul continue to pastor this congregation?

I think a clue is found in Paul's opening words to them, when he gives thanks for them: "I give thanks to my God always for you, because of the grace of God that has been given you in Christ Jesus . . ." While he may not find much to be grateful for in their current state, Paul knows that God's grace has been given them. That's enough.

Without a doubt, the church in Corinth created major headaches for the Apostle Paul. In the Corinthian church, Paul saw so much potential for good, so much possibility for them to become a model Christian community -- a model that would strengthen the churches, not only in Greece, but throughout the world.

Yet here they are, mired down in conflicts big and small. They argued over who was more spiritual, whose gifts were more important. They could not seem to leave behind them the social distinctions of the culture around them and live into the full egalitarian nature of a community made up of disciples of Jesus Christ.

In both letters to the church we have in our Bibles, we hear Paul pleading, cajoling, arguing, and almost demanding in his efforts to end the conflicts and help this church to get back on track.

I have long been fascinated with Paul's struggle with the Corinthian church. In these letters, we see the full passion and humanity of Paul. We come in contact with his pastoral heart, a heart that breaks, that gets angry, that overflows with love and longing.

Being in the middle of church strife and conflict is hard, especially when some of the focus of the conflict is on you and your role in the congregation. It is hard, as a leader in the congregation to deal with the flood of emotions that come when one is under attack, fairly or unfairly. It is hard to maintain an even spirit when you see some persons destroying or undermining the fabric of the community.

That is why I find Paul's reactions and struggles so instructive and challenging. Somehow, he is able to keep his focus on the bigger picture and not get totally

HEALTH TEAM UPDATE

HAPPY NEW YEAR AGAIN! The Health Ministries Team is already working on ways to support our congregation's physical, mental, emotional, and relational health this year. We are prioritizing the development of a Health Fair in September, developing on-going educational opportunities, collecting community resources to share with the larger congregation, and looking for ways for Lyndon Baptist Church to reach out into our community this year. We welcome any suggestions and resources we can share with the congregation.

In addition to the health fair, we are working to schedule a seminar on internet safety and security. This topic is of vital importance to everyone, young and old. We are also considering the best way to provide regular blood pressure screenings, or other screening opportunities throughout the year. As we collect information on important health related topics we will post information and provide materials for the congregation to share with family and friends.

The Health Ministries Team welcomes your suggestions and looks forward to hearing from our church family about topics of interest and resources we might share with each other. Feel free to share those resources with us and to work with us on special events throughout the year. We look forward to a happy, and healthy 2023.

PRAYER FOR CHRISTIAN UNITY

Wednesday begins the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity. We will be focusing worship services and prayer opportunities on Christian unity, especially remembering congregations in our immediate community.

- Open our hearts and minds to recognize that though we are many, we are one in you.
- send your grace to heal our divisions and gift us with unity.
- God, you are the source of our wisdom. We pray for wisdom and courage to do justice, to respond to what is wrong in the world by acting to make it right.
