Jim's Jottings

In the movie, "Miss Congeniality," Stan Fields, emcee of the Miss United States pageant asks the contestants, "What is the one thing our society needs?" One after another, each contestant looks at the audience, smiles brightly, and sweetly offers the stereo-typical beauty-pageant answer, "World peace." And yet, behind the scenes looks into the world of pageants often reveals a dog-eat-dog competitive environment that would not contribute to fostering world peace.

In 1991, Rodney King was brutally beaten by four Los Angeles Police officers during his arrest following a car chase through the city. The officers were charged with excessive use of force. Their acquittal on the charges in 1992 sparked the six-day Los Angeles Riots. Curing the middle of the riots, Rodney King went on television and asked, "Can we all just get along?" A version of his question, 'why can't we all just get along?' comes from our lips often in the midst of our contentious world.

We long for "world peace." We long for peace in our community. We long for peace in our state, in our nation. We long for all people to be able to "just get along."

The prophet Jeremiah recognized our longing for peace, daring to confront our false notions and visions of peace: "They have treated the wound of my people carelessly, crying, 'peace, peace,' when there is no peace." (Jeremiah 6:14)

Jesus laments our lack of awareness of what it actually takes to achieve "world peace": "If you had only recognized this day the things that make for peace." (Luke 19:42)

Long-time Baptist journalist Walker Knight wrote a poem God's peace and what it takes to achieve it, that goes in part:

Peace, like war, is waged.

Peace marshals its forces and storms the gates.

Peace, like war, is waged.

Peace gathers its weapons and pierces the defense.

Peace, like war, is waged.

But Christ has turned it all around:

the weapons of peace are love, joy, goodness, longsuffering;

the arms of peace are justice, truth, patience, prayer;

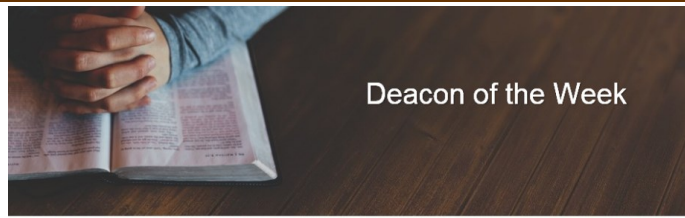

the strategy of peace brings safety, welfare, happiness;

the forces of peace are the sons and daughters of God.

To them, God chose to make known how great among the Gentiles are the riches of the glory of this mystery, which is Christ in you, the hope of glory!

Colossians 1:27

As one popular saying in Nigeria, "my gratitude has no end." How can I sum up my two years in the United States without mentioning Lyndon Baptist Church, it is impossible! A church that gives more than just physical presence but in all ways is a blessing.

You all have immeasurably contributed to my life in such a way, I can't forget. Four semesters with my extended family here in the States, is amazing. I lack words to say how grateful I am to God and to you; however, my prayer is God Almighty will appreciate you all in ways you never expect.

And as I look forward to the last two semesters and gladly say, "I'm done with undergrad," your prayers are highly appreciated.

In this season of "thanksgiving" for what Christ has done for us, starting from the leadership of this church to every member of this church, I want to say "Thank you so much"

I really appreciate your gift and labor of love to me to further equip me for the ministry of the WORD of God to the Gentiles.

Thank you to the Fidelis Class for donating Sixteen winter coats to the EACM Christmas Store

For God so Loved the World

As we follow His son, Jesus (Emmanuel-God with us) our prayers and offerings help fulfill His desire to bless people of all nations. God's physical birth and death revealed His love for us. His resurrection and promise of His Spirit makes possible our rebirth in Him so we can reveal His love to others.

As you pray, "Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven" please consider your world mission offering thru the Global Mission offering (Cooperative Baptist Fellowship) and Lottie Moon Christmas offering (International Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention).

All contributions go directly to the mission field. The bulletin inserts for today (CBF) and next Sunday (IMB) feature how God works through our prayers and offerings in parts of His world.
